Description

LaMora Pace is a Licensed Clinical Social Worker, Relationship Expert, and CEO of Healing Hearts Behavioral Health Care, a private counseling practice that helps individuals heal from old behavior patterns so they can establish and maintain healthy intimate relationships. Whether she is providing heart-to-heart work with individuals and couples, advocating for the mental wellness of all ethnicities, or coaching and training other mental health professionals, it is clear that LaMora is a woman who is driven by an unmistakable passion for helping people to really thrive.

Having successfully worked with individuals, families, and couples for more than twenty years, she has a well-earned reputation for pushing people past the surface and going deep. After realizing, early in her career, that most traditional therapies failed to reach clients from diverse communities, LaMora began developing her signature approach to counseling. Today her highly effective work is an unmatched combination of traditional therapeutic techniques, cultural understanding and pure compassion. To step into LaMora's office is to feel heard, felt, and understood.

Masterful at bringing love back to life, LaMora specializes in counseling Couples on the Verge of calling it quits. But, with her, they learn the tools to love, recommit and rebuild a relationship rooted in love, communication, and trust. From their family of origin to childhood trauma, LaMora expertly walks clients to the root of what creates challenges in their current relationships. Drawing on her extensive clinical experience with counseling individuals, in therapy, LaMora pulls couples apart, to ultimately bring them closer together.
